

My Daughter

She looked up at the sky and saw only black.
Drowning in pain ... could she find her way back?
Despair filled her up, it was spreading throughout.
She could barely breathe, yet she wanted to shout:

“Let me be, damn drugs, get out of my way.

I can't live liked this for another day!
There must be a way to break free of this chain,
But I've tried and tried and it's all been in vain.”

And then ... discovering the baby inside
She knew she must fight her battle full-stride.
But for so many years of living her horror,
How could she create a better tomorrow?

She was heard.

God sent his angels in the form of a place,
In which she could find safety to discover new grace.
Villa Rosa was found with amazing staff to teach and to care.
She listened well and laid her heart bare.

She was saved.
